A Puzzled Friend

Luna Owl loved the Old Oak Library. It was a calm place with tall shelves. One sunny afternoon, she saw Pip Squirrel. Pip had a bushy tail and bright, quick eyes. He was looking at something dusty. Pip looked very puzzled. Luna flew closer. "Hello, Pip," she said gently. Her curiosity started to grow.

Secret Squiggles

Pip held an old, crinkly page. It was yellow and soft. On the page were many tiny squiggles. "Luna," Pip squeaked, "what are these funny lines? Are they secret drawings?" Luna looked closely. The squiggles looked like small hooks and circles. She had never seen them quite like this before. It was a little puzzle.

What Are Letters?

Luna tilted her head. Then she remembered a very old scroll! "Pip," she said, "these are not drawings. These are letters! Letters are like special shapes. They help us make sounds." Luna pointed to a curvy shape. "This is letter 'S'. It makes a 'ssss' sound, like a snake!" Pip's eyes grew wide.

Letters Make Words

"And when letters stand together, they make words!" Luna showed him. She pointed to three letters: 'S', 'U', 'N'. "See? S-U-N spells SUN! We see the sun every day!" Pip tried to make the sounds. He felt very clever. "Wow!" he squeaked. Luna smiled. "Every question opens a new adventure!" she said softly.
