Toby's Morning Swim

Toby Turtle loved the lake. It was a bright, sunny morning. He swam slowly in Crystal Lake. He saw many colourful fish swimming by. He saw tall, green water plants swaying gently. "Slow and steady discovers wonders!" he thought. He felt very happy in his beautiful home.

A Sad Plant

Toby swam deeper, exploring the clear water. He saw a very pretty plant with big leaves. But wait! Something blue was stuck to it. It was a shiny, crinkly wrapper. The plant looked a little sad with the wrapper on it. Toby knew litter did not belong in the lake.

Toby's Idea

Toby stopped to think. He was a very patient turtle. He wanted to help the plant feel better. He knew he had to be gentle. He slowly moved his strong blue-green flippers. He got ready to take the wrapper off. He took a tiny breath.

Helping Hands (or flippers!)

Very carefully, Toby opened his mouth. He took the blue wrapper gently. He did not pull the plant. He held the wrapper softly in his mouth. Then, he swam slowly to the lake's edge. He put the wrapper on the sand, far away from the water.

A Happy Lake

Now the big plant was free! It swayed happily in the clean water. The lake looked even more beautiful. Toby felt so warm inside. He helped his Crystal Lake home. He kept it safe for all the fish and plants. "Slow and steady discovers wonders!" he smiled proudly.
