Barnaby Bunny and the Winking Stars

Barnaby Bunny and the Winking Stars

Little Stories. Big Lessons.

The First Star

Barnaby Bunny sat in his favourite Moonlight Meadow. The sun was going down low. The sky turned soft shades of pink and purple. Soon, night would come. Barnaby felt a gentle sleepy feeling. He looked up to the big sky. A tiny, bright star winked. It was the very first star of the evening.

Barnaby Bunny and the Winking Stars

Little Stories. Big Lessons.

Shiny Diamonds

More and more stars started to pop out. They looked like tiny, shiny diamonds across the dark blue blanket. Barnaby loved watching them sparkle. 'Hello, stars!' he whispered with a smile. He wished he could touch a star. He wished he could hold its gentle light in his paw.

Barnaby Bunny and the Winking Stars

Little Stories. Big Lessons.

Too Far Away

Barnaby stood on his tiptoes. He stretched his soft, grey-and-white paws way up high. 'Are you closer now?' he asked the twinkling sky. But the stars stayed very, very far away. They just twinkled from up above. Barnaby felt a tiny bit sad. He could not reach them.

Barnaby Bunny and the Winking Stars

Little Stories. Big Lessons.

A Gentle Idea

Then Barnaby had a warm, gentle idea. He found his most favourite fluffy cloud spot. It was very soft, just like a cozy bed. He lay down flat on his back. He closed his round sleepy eyes for a short moment. He took a slow, calm, deep breath in and out.

Barnaby Bunny and the Winking Stars

Little Stories. Big Lessons.

Sweet Dreams

Barnaby opened his sleepy eyes again. The stars looked like little lamps hanging above him. They were shining just for Barnaby. He felt so warm and comfortable. He imagined the stars were singing him a soft lullaby. He smiled a sweet, happy smile. Sweet dreams begin with a smile!