Time for Sweet Dreams

Barnaby Bunny felt sleepy. The sun was going down in Moonlight Meadow. His long ears drooped a little. He yawned a soft, wide yawn. 'Time for sweet dreams,' he said. He loved to imagine adventures before sleep. It helped him relax his little bunny toes.

A Fluffy Cloud

Barnaby lay down in his cozy burrow. He closed his round sleepy eyes. He imagined a fluffy, white cloud. It looked like a giant cotton ball. He wanted to float on it. Up, up, up he went in his mind. The cloud felt so soft and warm. Just right for dreaming.

A Wobbly Cloud

Barnaby imagined himself on the cloud. He tried to float higher. But the cloud felt a bit wobbly. 'Oh dear,' he thought. His dream cloud needed to be calm. He remembered his favourite way to relax. He took a slow, deep breath in. Then he let it out slowly.

Calm and Steady

Barnaby took another slow, deep breath. In through his pink nose. Out through his soft mouth. His body felt warm and heavy. The fluffy cloud became steady. No more wobbles! Barnaby floated gently. He saw shiny stars begin to twinkle. He smiled his sweet dream smile.

Sweet Dreams Begin

Barnaby floated higher and higher. He felt very calm and happy. This was his special dream adventure. He knew sweet dreams would come soon. His eyes stayed softly closed. 'Sweet dreams begin with a smile!' he whispered. He was safe and warm, ready for a good night's sleep.
