A Sad Friend

Oliver Fox walked in Blossom Meadow. The sun was warm and bright. He saw Pip Squirrel near a tall bush. Pip looked very sad. Oliver went closer. "Hello, Pip!" Oliver said. "Why are you sad today?"

The Tricky Bush

Pip held a tiny paw to his cheek. "Oh, Oliver!" he squeaked. "My very best acorn rolled under this bush. It has sharp thorns!" Pip pointed with his nose. "I cannot reach it. It looks tricky." Oliver looked at the bush. "Hmm, let's solve it together!"

Oliver's Good Idea

Oliver thought for a moment. "Pip, I can gently hold the bush branches up. You can quickly go under and get your acorn!" he said. Pip looked at the thorns. "But what if I get poked? What if the branches fall?" Pip asked. He felt a little scared.

Learning to Trust

"Don't worry, Pip," Oliver said with a kind smile. "I will hold them very steady. You must trust me. I will not let go until you are safe. We are friends, remember?" Pip looked at Oliver's kind face. He took a deep breath. "Okay, Oliver. I trust you."

Acorn Rescued!

Oliver used his strong paws. He slowly lifted the thorny branches high. "Now, Pip!" he called softly. Pip quickly scurried under the bush. He grabbed his shiny acorn! "I got it!" Pip cheered. Oliver slowly put the branches down. Pip gave him a big hug.

Happy Friends

"Thank you, Oliver!" Pip said. "You helped me so much." Oliver smiled. "Friends help friends. We trusted each other, and it worked!" They sat together, munching on the acorn. The sun shone on Blossom Meadow. Oliver felt happy to be a good friend.
